

ILLUSTRATED LECTURE

Abraham Lincoln

By JOHN KENNEDY LACOCK

100 Beautifully Colored Lantern Slides
Accompanied by
Illustrated Patriotic Songs

Abraham Lincoln

This lecture has been given, under the auspices of the Bureau of the National War Work Council, in practically every war camp in the North-eastern and Southeastern departments, and also in the Central and Eastern departments. The lecturer has visited, in Kentucky, Indiana, and Illinois the site of every log cabin in which Lincoln lived, as well as the other places where he made his home.

Illustrated Views

The set of views contains authentic pictures of Lincoln's birthplace, of all the log cabins in which he lived, of his mother's grave, scenes connected with his boyhood days in Indiana (1816-1830), with his career in Illinois (1830-1861), and with the Civil War (1861-1865), slides of his assassination and the capture of Booth, and of several of his famous sayings which the lecturer links up with the events of the Great World War.

Illustrated Songs

Not the least pleasing part of the evening's entertainment are the illustrated songs, containing at the bottom of each picture the words of the song which the scene illustrates.

America, 18 slides

Star Spangled Banner, 12 slides

Battle Hymn of the Republic, 12 slides

Old Kentucky Home, 10 slides

Red, White and Blue, 18 slides

Home, Sweet Home, 7 slides

Dixie, 20 slides

Till We Meet Again, 14 slides

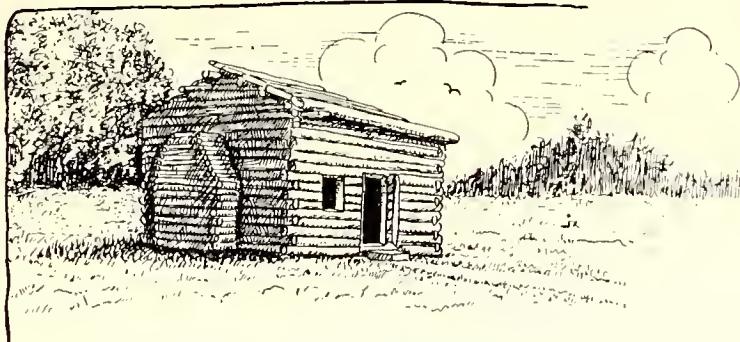

In connection with the illustrated songs the lecturer is permitted, by special courtesy of the manufacturers, to use the New Edison Phonograph, Army and Navy Model.

This lecture is especially adapted to Lyceum Courses, Chautauquas, Men and Women's Clubs, Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. Organizations, Lodges, Sunday Evening Services, Summer Hotels, and Parlor Entertainments. The lecturer furnishes his own stereopticon and usually the operator.

Testimonials

Camp Devens, Massachusetts,
March 22, 1919.

Mr. John K. Lacock, of Cambridge, has lectured in our huts and has been most acceptable to the men. He has a pleasing personality, a fine voice that carries well in the huts, and good talent as a mixer. His lectures are illustrated with beautiful slides.

William F. Slade,
Educational Director.

I have had the pleasure of hearing Mr. Lacock in his series of interesting and instructive lectures. He is a forceful speaker, an authority in his field, and has spared neither time nor expense in bringing together his magnificent collection of views. I can most heartily commend this series of lectures by Mr. Lacock.

Atlanta, Georgia,
May 1, 1919.

Dr. A. M. Souby, Educational Director of the Southeastern Department, wrote to the Camp Secretaries as follows:

"I am sending Mr. Lacock to you without any doubt in my mind at all of his making good in the highest sense. We have not had a speaker who has aroused so much interest and enthusiasm among our men. He has been one of the most useful men we have had. He has two great lectures, one on 'Abraham Lincoln' and one on 'George Washington,' illustrated with beautiful stereopticon slides. You may advertise him without limit, making a specialty of his addresses."

Later Mr. Souby wired the New York office:
"Lacock is splendid. Can we keep him to May first?"

Paris Island, South Carolina,
April 16, 1919.

Dr. Lacock was one of the most interesting speakers that has yet been to our camp. He has such a fine and pleasing personality. His message brought out through the portrayal of the life of Lincoln is exactly the kind of message that I think should be given to the boys in camp. The intermingling of the slides with the great words of Lincoln makes the story of his life very inspiring and presents it in such a way that you cannot forget it. I hope you will be able to find some more men like Dr. Lacock to send to our camp.

M. R. Zeigler,
Camp Secretary.

New London, Connecticut,

I want to thank you for coming to our district and giving our men the inspirational and educational uplift which they were so much in need of. We trust that this is the beginning of a number of visits to our district along similar lines.

Frank Killam,
District Secretary.

Boston Navy Yard,

I should report that the boys were very much pleased with your illustrated address on Lincoln and several called it "the best yet." It was fine.

R. H. Pierce,
Educational Secretary.

Arlington, Mass.,

Permit me to express to you my appreciation of your splendid address on Abraham Lincoln. Never before have I seen such excellent slides. Your knowledge of the subject and pleasing manner keep your audience with you all the time. It is right up to the minute and a wonderfully instructive and inspiring lecture. I wish you could have heard the complimentary things said about your lecture and about your beautiful slides on the patriotic songs.
